 Keith Halstead

After a career in the manufacturing industry Keith Halstead qualified as a chartered accountant with Ernst & Whinney, before moving to Arthur Young. Working on the Government's Business in the Community project he developed a strong interest in owner managed businesses. He moved to become a partner in two provincial firms with a varied portfolio until 2001 when he joined Kingston Smith via a merger.

Keith specialises in medical practitioners, farmers, charities, education, religious organisations and property. He is also heavily involved in family financial planning, inheritance tax planning and probate work for individual clients.
